

Gilbert Lake

Rondo

Sitting by a lively mountain stream one has the sense of rondo. A small theme is developed when the water rushes over a certain rock and splashes into the pool below. Other themes come and go but this special refrain pays his visit every so often like a familiar friend. Sometimes he appears a little different because of the breeze blowing over the water or a stick floating down the stream, but I recognize him each time he returns.