

The Light Switch Problem - Stated

A man is in the basement where there are three standard On/Off switches. One - and only one - controls a light bulb on the floor above. From the basement he can't tell if the light is on or off. He can make only one trip up to the floor above. How can he determine, with certainty, which switch controls the light bulb?

